WHEELING, JUNE 22, 1893.

The Prosecutor's Zeal.

Sometimes there is reason to complain of a lack of zeal in prosecuting for felony. This is where the accused has great influence or large wealth and is able to make an impression on the prosecuting officer. It is commoner to see the prosecuting officer bend all his energies to convict, regardless of the guilt or innocence of the accused.

In the Borden case the prosecutor must have known before the trial what he had to go on. By the time all the evidence was in he must have realized, what every other observer could not help realizing, that he had failed to make out a case against the young woman.

From his address to the jury it might have been thought that he had forged a complete chain, strong in every link. It made no difference to him that there was nothing to show that Lizzie Borden had committed the crime.

He assured the jury that she did it, and by painting a lurid picture of Miss Borden hacking her step-mother to pieces and then her father, endeavored to make the jury see her in the very act. His aim was to convict, in spite of his failure to lay before the jury anything to justify conviction.

Surely it is not the duty of a prosecutor to seek a conviction against the evidence or in the face of a conspicuous lack of evidence. His business is to contribute to the ends of justice, and this is not justice.

Prosecutor Knowlton gains the fame of a dramatic speech unsupported by any facts laid before the jury; and he gains the infamy of trying to convict a woman without the evidence to warrant conviction.

The great suburban teaches once more that it is not well to pin your pile to a horse race. Save your money and go to the World's Fair.

Ten Months of Wrong.

For nearly ten months the commonwealth of Massachusetts kept Lizzie Borden in prison, all the time looking for evidence against her and finding none, yet determined to convict her if possible without evidence. Civilized society should be glad to make what amends it can for so great a wrong as this.

The verdict of the jury is formal and official declaration of the wrong. For every day and every hour of those months Lizzie Borden is now shown to have been as much entitled to her liberty as the lawyer who prosecuted her or any one of the judges who sat in the case.

When a state makes such a blunder it should pay roundly for it, little as money can compensate for the wrong.

A Useful Millionaire.

Senator Leland Stanford, of California, whose death is announced, was one of the rich men of the country who have been of real use to their generation. He made his fortune with his brains and industry and took pleasure in devoting a liberal portion of it to the public welfare. In the university which bears his name he has left a monument better than any sculptor could have carved for him.

He gave back to his state and his country part of that which they enabled him to accumulate, and it is probable that in his will he has provided for other public benefactions. Nobody should ever grudge such a man as Leland Stanford all the wealth he may accumulate.

The Cramps' richly deserve the $200,000 bonus they have received for exceeding by a knot the contract speed of the New York. We are getting into the shipbuilding business in this country.

Free City Bridges.

The people of Pittsburgh have voted to make free the bridges, which connect the several parts of the city. The vote was taken on a proposition to issue bonds for acquiring the bridge properties.

No agreement has yet been reached with the companies owning the bridges, but the mayor says that if they will not agree to sell at fair prices steps will be taken to condemn the bridges to public use.

Pittsburg is setting Wheeling a good example. There is no more reason why a toll should be laid on communication between the Island and the city proper than between the portions of the city divided by the creek.

At the same time it must be admitted that no loud demand for free communication has ever come from the Island, which would be most benefited by abolishing tolls.

Another French duel. Nobody hurt. What a country France is to have fun in.

The Fourth of July Parade.

The Fourth of July committee has endeavored to invite every organization to take part in the street demonstration. It is probable that some have been overlooked. It is certain that some have taken no notice of the invitation although some of these again are understood to be arranging to take part.

A public invitation has been issued through the press to every organization. Each has been asked to say whether it will or will not take part. Nobody should stand on ceremony in a matter of this kind. It is to be a popular demonstration.

The chamber of commerce took hold and appointed a committee because it was necessary for somebody to make the start and push the enterprise. Assistance from any and all quarters has been asked and welcomed where it has been proffered. Fourth of July is the people's day and all the people should feel that there is a place on the programme for them.

There must be some order and some organization, and the point has been reached where it is necessary for the chief marshal to know how many organizations and men he will have to handle on that day. Those who have not responded would do well to communicate with Secretary Dinger without delay.

SHARPSBURG, Pennsylvania, has a plague of tadpoles, in fact the drinking water is a little more tadpole than water. The trouble is attributed to the low stage of water in the Allegheny river.

He Had a Vision.

A Chicago minister has had a vision in which he saw a personal devil standing by as Chief Justice Fuller was writing his decision in the World's Fair Sunday opening case, and remarking at the conclusion that he could not have done better himself. The revelation of the vision was enthusiastically applauded by the clerical hearers.

The applause, coming from such a source, is to be regretted. The chief justice of the United States fills an office to which every citizen should pay the homage of the highest respect, and Chief Justice Fuller fills the office worthily. His character as a man no less than his position as a jurist should have exempted him from such a fling.

The ministers might have remembered that the chief justice was construing the law, not passing on any question of morals. As he understood the law the local corporation is in control of the fair grounds, and he so held.

Are our judges to be denounced by ministers of the gospel for not disregarding the law? Fortunately the chief justice cannot be burned as a witch. It is too late for that.

The first seaside rescue of the season is reported. As long as people will attempt risky things in the water so long will there be need of quick and nifty men on the spot to save them from their folly. Unfortunately the attempt to rescue is not always successful.

The explosion in the Madrid circus was not so bad a thing in itself, but the panic was terrible. So it was in the Wisconsin circus disaster yesterday. It is useless to tell people that a cool head is the best thing under all circumstances. They won't believe it.

The Spanish anarchists are beginning their Fourth of July early and with a vengeance. If the police get hold of them they will be somewhere else next Fourth of July, surrounded by more fireworks than they ever dreamed of.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

Itinerant florists, who go through the streets with loud ostentatious, and who sell geraniums, verbenas, heliotropes, merrillies, daisies and roses at less than greenhouse prices, are an annual blessing to the tenement quarters at this time of year. The window ledges along many blocks of otherwise bare and ugly fronts are brightened with flowering plants, many of them potted in tomato cans and cigar boxes, but giving forth the same grateful color and perfume as if they grew in jardinières of expensive porcelain.—New York Sun.

After the dukes, princesses and other members of the foreign nobility and royalty who have visited this city, Chicago is glad to welcome Benjamin Harrison, citizen of the United States. Mr. Harrison, after holding the highest office in the nation for four years, retired at the expiration of his term to his home in Indianapolis, where he has devoted himself to his private affairs as a good citizen should.—Chicago Herald.

Queen Victoria is a lover of flowers, but her table decorations are of the simplest. A few bowls of roses or other simple blossoms, cut in the beautiful gardens at Old Windsor, and the rest of the decorations laid upon the table in plain glass troughs, straight and curved, and of a quite cheap and ordinary kind, constitute as a rule the whole adornment of the royal dinner table.

Women have given an aggregate of $2,328,078 18 to institutions of learning in the state of Massachusetts, of which Harvard has received more than half. Public libraries in the state have received from women gifts amounting to $681,196; public industrial schools have received $122,000, and kindergartens, $344,679.

A Bavarian aeronaut named Koch has a scheme for a new guidable flying apparatus, and the Bavarian ministers of the interior and education think enough of it and of him to make him a grant of sixteen thousand marks to enable him to carry out his ideas.

Among the artistic geniuses of Ipswich, Mass., are Arthur W. Dow, the famous artist, and Everett S. Hubbard, who had the first poem in the New England Magazine for October, 1892, on "The Three Ships."

"Green goods" circulars have been flooding the West again. It does not seem possible that anybody, even if mentally weak, could be induced to pay any attention to these silly circulars.

Lost children in Japan do not long remain astray. It is the custom for parents to label their children with their addresses, so that in case they wander any wayfarer may send them home.

A damage suit for $10,000, growing out of the reading of a dime novel, by which a train was wrecked near Newark, O., a year ago, is being tried in the United States court at Columbus.

Nothing is wasted in China. The stones of various fruits and the shells of nuts are cleaned, dried and carved into ornaments of the most graceful kind.

Mrs. Elizabeth Latham died at Atlanta, Ga., last week, aged 102 years. She was one of the few centenarians who did not claim to have seen Washington.

London letter carriers find a good many empty purses in letter boxes. Pickpockets think it safer to drop them there than on the pavements.

Two pieces of ancient scrip are in the possession of Frederick W. Nottingham, of New Haven, Conn. The relics are dated 1778 and 1779.

PERSONAL POINTS.

After the wedding of the Princess May and the duke of Teck, which will take place early in July next, they will occupy their home in St. James palace, which is now being prepared for them. The honeymoon will be spent at Osborne.

Mr. Gladstone is being strongly urged to visit Ireland this summer. The people of Cork are very urgent in their desire to welcome the Grand Old Man, but it is scarcely probable that their hopes will be realized.

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, who is nearly eighty years old, is as enthusiastic an Irish affairs as ever; and he is said to possess almost as much vitality as he did forty years ago.

Mrs. "Jack" Gardner, a society leader in Boston, is the owner of a diamond necklace nearly three feet long, which she wears around her neck like a boa.

Mayor Carter Harrison's grandfather, Robert Carter Harrison, was born at Clifton, Cumberland county, Va., and was first cousin to Thomas Jefferson.

Baron Luttwitz, of Germany, is expected to arrive in a few days. He is noted as a player of big game in many lands and is the hero of some thrilling escapes.

Princess Teresa, sister of the prince regent of Bavaria, has been elected a member of the Bavarian Academy of Sciences—a rare distinction for a woman.

Mary Wales, an ancient Boston spinster, by her will left $5,000 to her pet tom cat Otto.

WIT AND WISDOM.

"Oh, I think it's lovely to be married," said a young woman to the lady on whom she was calling, "especially when you have a husband who is not afraid to compliment you." "What does your husband say?" "He said yesterday that I was getting to be a perfect Xantippe." "A Xantippe! Do you know who she was?" "Oh, yes; I asked Charley afterward, and he told me she was the goddess of youth and beauty."—Texas Sittings.

Always Sweep Under the Mat.

FITZ NOEL.

A story is told of a poor servant girl, who once was moody and strange. Who asked for admission to the fold of the church.

As she had experienced a change. When asked by the pastor a reason to give for a step so important as that.

She answered—"Before, sir, I slogged my work. But now I sweep under the mat."

That's the world of food sense. In this simple reply.

And well worth study and thought. To those who are traveling the way that is broad.

Not doing the things which we ought. Be true to yourself; do the best that you can. In business, at law, or in art.

Whatever you do, be faithful and true. And always "sweep under the mat."

An Escape.

The day has past when a trust can dictate as to what a smoker can purchase. Admiral cigarettes emanate from an effort to please in which greed for inordinate profit is not the controlling power.

SUNDAY OPENING DECISION.

A Gala to the Public.
Pittsburgh Dispatch.

However that question may be settled for the future, the present result of the decision is an undoubted gain to the public. It will permit the thousands upon thousands of people who would otherwise be debarred from that privilege the opportunity of seeing and studying the wonders of the exposition. It will enlarge the educational effect of the enterprise, which is almost infinite in its scope, and which will not again be available for a century.

A Novel Feature.

Washington Star.

In deciding that the World's Fair may be thrown open to the public Sunday the Chicago court of appeals has not surprised any one who has been watching the fight made by the local directory, but the opinion that the government has no place in the management of the exposition will be a shock to several legislators who supposed that the government had a good deal to do with the great show. An international celebration in which the nation has none but a subordinate and money-providing part is surely novel.

A Branch of Faith.

New York Tribune.

Unquestionably a great number of persons approve of Sunday opening for various reasons. But nevertheless the assured consequence of this decision will not be entirely satisfactory to all of these, for the fact remains that the managers of the exhibition accepted public money upon a condition which they are not going to fulfill. The court cannot in this case prevent a breach of faith, but neither can it justify one.

Many Advantages.

Deloitte Free Press.

The advantages of this decision cannot be overestimated. Sunday opening will contribute largely to the financial success of the Fair and it will enable hundreds of thousands to enjoy its benefits who would otherwise be deprived of them. As for the baneful effects predicted by the Sabbatarians, nothing more is likely to be heard of them.

Right in Law, Right in Morals.

St. Paul Globe.

In this instance what is right in law we believe to be right in morals. The lessons of the fair are of the best and most elevating character. They are at the same time a revelation and an incentive. There are thousands who can study and profit by them Sunday who would otherwise be deprived of this rare privilege.

One Effect.

New York Times.

Even the feeling against Sunday opening is likely to subside now, and the enormous benefit will be gained of a general transformation of opinion on the whole subject of Sunday observance. Enormous gain has been made for the cause of a rational use of the weekly day of rest.

Bigotry vs. Christianity.

St. Paul Globe.

Bigotry is defeated. Christianity and morality have triumphed in the decision rendered by Chief Justice Fuller and concurred in by Judges Bunn and Allen.

Failures of a Day.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, June 21.—The Citizens Saving Bank closed its doors this morning. No statement of its condition was given except to state that President Overturf hoped to be able soon to overcome the difficulties now encountered.
